

RIME

REBOOT!

RIME REBOOT !

Chris Rime's first legendary album, RIME, was released thirty years ago. It was a reference in terms of electric guitar, composition, and powerful jazz, but more than anything, it featured unforgettable songs performed by renowned musicians like Michel Alibo and Mokhtar Samba.

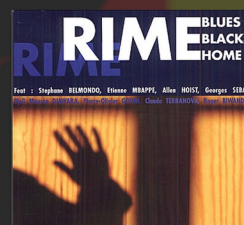

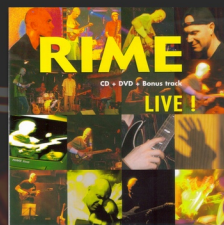

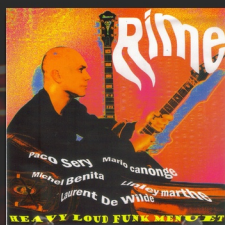

The guitarist's quintet is still touring France today. The outstanding fusion and jazz balance that existed at the beginning of the project has been expertly preserved in the new version of Rime Reboot. The lineup consists of guitarist Chris Rime, keyboardist Christophe Cravero (who has performed with Etienne Mbappe, Billy Cobham, and Dave Weckel), drummer Roger Biwandu (who has performed with Salif Keita and Zawinul Syndicate), bassist Mike Clinton (who has accompanied Soul to Soul and Salif Keita), and saxophonist Pierre-Olivier Govin (who plays with Ultramarine and the ONJ).

Dizzy Gillespie, Steps, Weather Report, Steve Vai, and Allan Holdsworth are just a few of Chris's many influences. However, the eclectic cultures and tastes of each member of the group contribute to build this unique sound and effervescent complicity.

After over 300 concerts, Chris Rime has established himself on the French music scene. His audiences are always there, regardless of the venue's size. The guitar obviously plays a dominant role in his entire repertoire. Whether clean or distorted, the guitar sounds, resolutely colorful and woody, appear as the guitarist's signature, but also as a warm link between the songs. Chris doesn't hesitate to flirt with rock or metal, thus subverting genre conventions.

Beyond his virtuosity, Chris Rime must be recognized for his talents as a composer and arranger. There is always a groove present in the song. The musical diversity of the compositions and their emotional intensity (Amaudrenour, Rainbows Over You) are undeniable.

To put it briefly, Rime Reboot is a jazz-fusion with rock and funk influences that emphasizes emotion, sensitivity and instrumental mastery. Chris Rime conveys his love of unconventional music with intricate arrangements and a wide spectrum of inspirations, embracing his eclectic preferences.

RIME

REBOOT !

BIO

Music quickly became an essential part of Chris Rime's life. To accompany his siblings, he started playing drums at age 10, then discovered the guitar, which he would never put down. He gave his first concerts while still in middle school. At 16, he formed a duo with Nguyen Lê and performed regularly in Parisian clubs. Barely an adult, he crossed the Atlantic to enroll at the legendary Berklee College of Music.

Back in France, he took on numerous projects, both as a sideman and as a leader in Jazz and Fusion with his group Soap Op. He performed with John Cage at the Villa Medici and also appeared on the stages of the La Défense Jazz Competition, the Underwater Image Music Competition, and later, the "A Sound for the Year 2000" competition in Val de Marne.

In 1995, Chris released his first album, "RIME," recorded with Mokhtar Samba and Michel Alibo. This album, then in rotation on national radio stations, was acclaimed by the music press. Production companies regularly sought him out for his talents as a composer and producer.

Chris went on to release five albums under his own name, including a live album, as well as several concert series. His list of guest artists is prestigious: Paco Sery, Linley Marthe, Laurent De Wilde, Etienne Mbappé, Stéphane Belmondo, Roger Biwandu, Marcus Miller, Mario Canonge..

Beyond jazz, he also participates in world music, gospel, and pop projects alongside Georges Seba, Djeli Moussa Diawara, and his partner Audren and daughter Jemily Rime.

In 2021, his sixth album, At The Bar With Mr Punk, was released, once again featuring talented guests: Hadrien Feraud, Federico Malaman, Dominique Di Piazza, and Stéphane Castry. On this album, honed in concert with Tilo Bertholo and Rody Cereyon, Chris, the virtuoso, explores new avenues and breaks the mold of instrumental music by blending electro, rock, and funk with jazz fusion.

Since 1997, Chris has composed and produced music for television (documentaries on Arte and France Télévisions), film (Frankie by F. Berthaud starring Diane Kruger), and AAA video games. He is also a guitar performance lecturer, giving masterclasses and publishing several best-selling books on guitar and computer music.

Framus Guitars has supported Chris Rime since 2015.

CONTACT@PUMPLESTONE.COM

RIME

REBOOT !

PRESS

"Rarely has a guitarist so successfully blended the styles of Joe Satriani, Larry Carlton, Steve Lukather, John Scofield, Mike Stern, Eddie Van Halen, and Allan Holdsworth." Guitarist (Fr)

"Chris Rime is the revelation of recent years in the world of jazz fusion." Ouest France

"The rhythm section is impeccable, and the virtuosity takes risks. Perfectionism isn't always a flaw." Guitar Part

"Whether clean or distorted, he demonstrates great inspiration and reveals an impeccable technique. His playing draws from jazz, rock, and even hard rock." Guitar & Bass (Fr)

"You'll encounter music that is bizarre, funky, technically very sophisticated, and virtuosic." Guitar & Bass (Germany)

"A lively, electric jazz-funk, punctuated by energetic choruses and delivered with infectious good humor." Jazzman

"A very solid jazz-rock guitarist who fits perfectly into the French jazz scene." Discover it as soon as possible. Telegramme de Brest

"The pages this brilliant guitarist strings together, supported by renowned musicians, sometimes sound like an enriched reinterpretation of the jazz-rock genre. The compositions, boosted by contemporary sounds, recapture its original energy and funky vigor." Dernières Nouvelles d'Alsace www.christopherime.com

www.youtube.com/@christopherime

VIDEOS

CONTACT@PUMPLESTONE.COM